CELLULOID SAVES LIVES.

Germana Use This as Covering for Soldiers' Wounds.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald. Berlin, July 31.—The German army surgeons in the field and in the hossurgeons in the neid and in the nos-pitals have succeeded in saving the lives, or at least the limbs, of many wounded soldiers with the aid of cel-luloid. The method is simple. The wounds after their antiseptic treat-ment, are covered with very thin sheets of transparent celluloid which are fastened around the edges with adhesive plaster. This system enables the surgeon to watch the healing process closely without removing the bandage. The celluioid sheets are practically indestructible and can be sed times and again after proper
